WA ACI CHAPTER MEETING FEBRUARY 1, 2023

A SPECIAL UW ACI STUDENT CHAPTER NETWORKING AND DINNER EVENT!

The University of Washington's (UW) academic year is underway. Our UW ACI Student Chapter has several exciting changes and opportunities already underway. First, they have a new Asst. Professor in the Dept. of Construction Management, Fred Aguayo. He also serves as the new Faculty Advisor for the student chapter.

Fred has extensive experience and success in working with local ACI professional chapters and students. Before joining UW, Fred was an Assistant Professor at Texas State University in San Marcos, TX. He taught and performed research in concrete materials, durability, and sustainable infrastructure construction. While at Texas State, Fred actively supported the ACI Student Chapter with student competitions, scholarships, social events, networking, and preparing students for ACI certification exams. As Student Liaison, Fred directly connects us to the students in CM and grows our network with CE. Fred will introduce his vision of connecting students with a focus on concrete materials and his vision for the CM program and developing the relationship with CE.

Led by Cole Magruder, Student President and a Jr in the CM program, they held their 1st meeting, selected their Student Chapter leadership, and added three new positions to their Board; Treasurer, Event Coordinator, and Social Media manager. They are eager to work and connect with you in the concrete construction industry and WA ACI in the Puget Sound.

"We are excited about the event between the official chapter and our chapter happening at the end of the month ." - Cole Magruder, UW ACI Student President.

.The January 32nd meeting (YES, that means February 1) is the opening bell to meet with the students and learn how we can support and connect them to our WA ACI network.

Our meeting will be a casual get-together to meet the students and encourage the next generation of industry leadership. Bring your thinking cap!
