ANNIE OAKLEY COMPETITION RULES

The Annie Oakley Competition is back this year and better than ever!

You must register to compete in this event.

First and second-place winners split the purse 60/40!

The Annie Oakley Competition rules are as follows: The shooting begins with the shooter on the far-left end of the line. The first shooter calls for a target and must shoot the target on the rise. If they hit the target, the next shooter to their right will call for a target. If the first shooter misses their target, the second shooter must shoot at it. If they hit the target, the first shooter is out. If the second shooter misses the target, the third shooter can shoot at it. If they hit the target, the first and second shooters are out. If they miss it, all shooters are safe, and the second shooter will start the next round. This sequence is repeated down the line. When the next-to-last shooter is first, it makes the person on the far left the third shooter. The rotation will continue until there is only one shooter left. A shooter who shoots out of turn or at a target that has been hit will be out. Enjoy!
